Are you interested in expanding your career with a growing firm?

Do you want to work with professionals who actually appreciate each other?

Are you ready for a challenging position in the legal profession where the "challenge" itself isn't just figuring out how to "get more done in a day"?

If so, Danna McKitrick may be the law firm you could be proud to call your workplace.

In your career search, you've probably found that law firms vary quite a lot in their culture and service approaches. At Danna McKitrick, we offer intelligent and enthusiastic candidates a genuinely friendly and collegial atmosphere-one where you are inspired and challenged by the work quality and given the opportunity to truly contribute to meeting the needs of our diverse clientele.

We are big on quality. Quality of care and service to clients. Quality in our work product, quality of life and future for those who work here. And quality of contribution to our communities.

And we do our best to continuously uphold the values of respect, integrity, and pride in our work and in our actions. Daily work at Danna McKitrick demonstrates that, regardless of job title, we communicate with each other often, candidly, on a first name basis, and with an open-door policy.

Unlike most firms, our litigation and transactional practices aren't strictly compartmentalized. Almost all our attorneys collaborate across "department lines" and many of us have practices founded on significant experience in both transactional law and litigation.

If you're a new attorney, you are free to work across departments resulting in exposure to many service types, client scenarios, and industries for your greater development overall.

If you're an experienced attorney, we supply the resources to back you up, supporting the types of services you most want to provide, and the opportunity to take your career to the next level. You'll find colleagues with attitudes and practice strengths you aren't hesitant to refer to your most valued clients.

If you're a principal-level attorney with a great client base and looking to make a lateral move, Danna McKitrick, P.C. may be a good fit for you. Ron Danna and Mike McKitrick would be happy to speak with you!

You'll enjoy having a voice, receiving outstanding support through our administrative team, led by our Director of Administration, Jim Baalman, MBA. You'll grow your practice through our very strong marketing culture with planning, coaching, and PR resources available to you. Danna McKitrick is committed to helping each attorney maximize his or her career potential.

Danna McKitrick encourages supporting our community and local charities and we play a lead role in addressing unmet legal needs through our pro bono work.
